ONE WOMAN'S DAY

EARTHWORMS AND AERATION

A READER of this column who, so he says, gets amusement and pleasure out of my "unorthodox Nature studies," has just sent me a clipping from what is evidently an eastern newspaper. It puts forward a proposition from a Toronto man—and isn't Toronto full of men with propositions these days?

But this hasn't to do with a stock-selling proposition. The rontonian is an agent for an American concern which deals, among other queer commodities, with shipments of earth-worms. And here let me interject that there may be some re-lation between selling stocks and selling worms, after all—for most of the people who fall for the lure of the "phoney" stocksalesman, must feel about on a par with an earthworm when they discover how gullible they have been.

EXTOLS THEIR VIRTUES BUT TO COME BACK to the earthworms—the eastern adverser extols the virtues of these wrigglers to a point that is almost on a level with the cosmetic blurbs. What they can't do for a garden or farm—well!

Describing them as first class soil aerators, the agent proceeds to show that, if you will only give them a chance they will make the desert blossom like the rose. According to the Torontonian, his particular earthworms are miniature tractors and "caterpillars" in their potential productiveness.

BUSY BURROWERS

YOU HAVE ONLY TO take a patch of ground where the 1 neighbor's tin cans and garbage have been deposited over the years, where rank weeds grow to tree height, and introduce a carload of earthworms to it

In next to no time those busy little worms will have burrowed and tunnelled and tossed the soil—and the tin cans—around to such good purpose that things can be grown there that would never have been possible before. Of course, you have to make sure that you get good, industrious worms, who will work from sup up to sun down, and not any of your 30 hour veek, sit-down strikers.

CONSCIENTIOUS KIND

BUT, ACCORDING to a farmer friend of mine, most earthworms are conscientious workers if given a chance. He told me he knew of wonderful results produced in farms where the soil had been literally worked out or was of such a cley-ey con sistency that practically nothing would grow.

When an army of earthworms were introduced to the scene they worked miracles by aerating the soil with their tunnel-lings, and changing its consistency so completely as to rehabili-tate the farm to the point of amazing productiveness.

I POINTED out that the advertisement spoke of American earthworms and I wondered if they had, by some means, captured something of the dynamic energy of the American people, or whether they had been synthetically galvanized into extra activity by some laboratory process

At which he laughed long and loud. In all his long experience he didn't remember having ever met an American earthworm, or if he had the worms hadn't made known their birthplace. But he felt quite sure that Canadian earthworms could do just as good a job as any immigrant labor—if e could only get the worms in sufficient quantity.

CANADIAN KIND

SO TO THOSE OF MY READERS who may be looking for earthworms to resuscitate worn-out backyards, I can suggest that they start their own wormeries by first finding a

I recall seeing somewhere out in the Gordon Head district a notice on a gate to the effect: "Worms For Sale." I didn't investigate so I don't know whether the owner bred them or just dug them up by the thousand out of his own backvard. But I do remember the quaint old character who used to live at Shawnigan Lake and who bred and reared fat, juicy worms on tealeaves and old sacking. Whether they were too fat and well-fed for farm work I couldn't say. I only know that they were in prime demand during the trout season.

MacArthur Told To Slash Staff Aides

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (UP)-General of the Army Douglas MacArthur has been ordered by Secretary of the Army Frank Pace. Jr., to trim his personal staff from eight to three men, it was disclosed last night.

The order, issued Feb. 12, was revealed by MacArthur's aide, Col. Laurence E. Bunker, who with a warrant officer and a master sergeant officer, now wil comprise the five-star general's personal staff.

Bunker said he could not explain the reduction "because of regulations which forbid an army officer to make charges against his superiors."

Mr. Anscomb's Reply

MR. ANSCOMB'S REPLY TO MR Johnson was admirable in its good temper but not very convincing in its

He tries to say that he was dismissed from the provincial government solely because he released a press statement prematurely, and he denies that he did anything of the sort.

The facts of his famous press state ment are clear enough—it was given out by Mr. Anscomb though he had promised to discuss his Ottawa mission with the cabinet before he said anything in public What Mr. Anscomb fails to mention is that he was not dismissed for this single offense but for a continual series hostile acts against the premier and the Liberal members of the government. The press statement was not the main cause but the occasion of his dismissal, which had righly earned.

The public can judge of this affair tiself. The question which it expected Mr. Anscomb to answer in his speech this week was how the Conservative party would conduct its election campaign, what policies it would sup port and, above all, where it quarreled with the policy of the present govern-

Mr. Anscomb did not attempt to answer those questions. It will be exceedingly difficult for him to do so, since he has been a party, until now, to every act of the government. The policies fol-lowed for many years are as much his as Mr. Johnson's. The huge budget now inder preparation is Mr. Anscomb's own which is only a small incident in the inevitable dissolution of the coalition?

What, then, does Mr. Anscomb hold

Perhaps it is too early to expect Mr. Anscomb to answer. He may well say that he intends to wait and see how the government performs. He may have policies which he has not revealed but will reveal when the campaign gets under way. But at the moment he presents no argument for his own election, no argument for his own election, no reason why the Liberal government should be replaced and no issue for the public's consideration. Finally Mr. Anscomb will be required, at least in the public mind, to clarify his own personal position in politics.

Up to now he has been only one member of a coalition government and is now only a private member of the legislature. Shortly he will ask the people to make him head of a new government. ernment. That government undoubtedly will be buying selling and fixing the price of liquor.

Mr. Anscomb is still deeply inter-ested in the liquor business. Is it con-ceivable, in a constitutional sense, that the head of a government can also be, in private life, a person who does business on a large scale with his own gov-

It is to be hoped, in the interests of good government, that Mr. Anscomb will separate himself from all these extraneous interests before he seeks the leadership of a cabinet. Constitutionally speaking, he is disbarred from seeking in his present circumstances, which do not touch his honor but assuredly touch a deep and important principle

Fact And Fancy

T TOOK A COMBINATION OF TRAditional Chinese inscrutability and Communist effrontery to produce Mao's recent suggestion that Russia act as one of the neutrals in supervising arrangements of a truce in Korea.

How the peoples within the Soviet orbit might look upon such a proposal we do not know. Presumably their well drilled mentalities would accept it as reasonable and practical. And even in a technical sense, the Chinese Red nego-tiators have a certain ironic logic in their persistence, for to accept the Allied rejection of this suggestion would be to admit what the Kremlin never admitted: that Russia is in fact the guiding power of the North Korean cause.

The jet fighters, the tanks, the heavy guns, the ammunition and fuel for all these weapons, the advisors and perhaps even some of the operators to be found on the Communist side in Korea have been Russian. It has all been done on a thoroughly unofficial basis, of course and the Soviet can still stand up in the United Nations and claim to be a neu-tral, But the facts are otherwise.

The point is a fundamental one in The point is a fundamental one in assessing the two principles guiding East and West. The Communists proclaim a "fact" and thereafter a fact it must be however the evidence of the human senses may contradict it.

To question the "fact" is to betray the Party line, to be a reactionary, a counter-revolutionist, a conspirator and a criminal. Consequently Russians and satellites must swallow with straight faces the doctrines promulgated by the Kremlin, whether they be conperned with Soviet neutrality, Mendel's laws of heredity, belief in the imminent collapse of capitalism, or merely claims that Russians invented wireless, the tele one, the automobile and such trifles. The West, on the other hand, tends to ignore edicts in favor of factual evice. There is less concern for official claims than for the data that presum-ably support them. Under that treatment the Russian assertions collapse. Unfortunately the two different approaches to truth offer little hope of reconciliation, as any one of the harassed U.N. negotiators at Panmunjom would

Tossing Too Much On The Bar

IN THE 1950-51 FISCAL YEAR, British Columbia's government spent approximately $118 millions. That covered all its outlays in the current administration and development of the province, apart from capital construc-tion. In the same time, British Colum-bians spent more than half the same amount on liquor alone.

Such is the story told in the annual report of the Liquor Control Board. Actual sales for the period totaled $60,557,714. The drinking public paid more. Extra charges levied by beer parlors and clubs probably ran the total liquor chit up to $70 million. That is, by rough computation, about $60 a year or $5 a month per man, woman or child in this province.

That does not represent a complete economic loss to the province or country.

Of the total sales, $18,773,138 went directly to the government in liquor profits. Actually, about three-quarters of the $70 millions found its way to federal, directly or indirectly the excise, sales tax and other levies.

No figures are given on the gallonage consumed. Totals are computed in dollar and cents only, although it is admitted British Columbians are drinking more. Whether that increase in consumption is greater than might be expected from the higher population cannot be determined without further surveys. Apparently, however, present system of handling liquor not discouraged drinking.

Many conclusions will be drawn from the liquor bill. Its staggering size cannot be glossed over. And though most of it may flow through to the different governments, the total furnishes a yardstick of public spending on a non-essential against which to measure other expenditure. The people of a province who drink up half as much money as the provincial government spends in a year are tossing too

Public Watches For Possible Tax Changes

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

T ISN'T often that old Dave re-reads a book within two months, least of all a novel. But that's what he's doing Eric Linklater's recent "Laxdale" and loving it. It isn't that the first reading, in Christmas week, remains just a blur to him, either, so enough of your cheap slanders, if you please. Permit me to quote just a line or two . . . no doubt the best line in the book, but the rest aren't far behind it. One of the characters observes that there's absolutely no use going to a modern young doctor. just shoots you full of penicillin, and if that doesn't work, he sends you to a psychiatrist. I'm sorry that a family journal won't allow me to quote the second-best line. Nothing wrong with it. But families would think so.

COINCIDENCE.

FOR years and years I have been keep I ing a recipe (clipped from a big industrial firm's company paper, of all places). I had to wait till we had sweetbreads, chicken, and mushrooms all in the house at once. And that doesn't hap pen too often, in this house. It could have happened oftener when chickens were cheap and the butcher gave you sweet breads free. These days, it happens as often as W. H. Davies' cuckoo and rainbow appearing together . . . "a cuckoo and a rambow. Lord, how rich and the times are now!" or words

WELL, in the same miraculous way. the sweetbreads and mushrooms and chicken arrived in a bunch, nobody yet knows why. We did lack the sherry called for in the recipe, but it was mighty good anyhow. And here is what you do. You cook a lb. of sweetbreads in water with 1 tablespoon salt 1 of water, with 1 tablespoon salt, 1 of vinegar, and 2 bay leaves, per pint of water. Also black pepper. Keep the water after, for a sauce. Make the sauce with ½ pint of this water, ½ cup butter, ½ cup flour, bringing it to boil and then taking off the fire and adding 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons sherry, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, your lb. of sweet-breads diced, ¼ lb. breast of chicken diced (cooked), and ¼ lb. mushrooms ... probably raw... we used them raw, and they got cooked by remaining in the above mixture for about half an hour in the double-boiler.

SERVE in shells or on toast. And very nice too. I don't know what it is called, but my notes tell me it is the favorite recipe of the chef at the Saguenay Inn. Arvida. I am quite sure the name wouldn't be Alcanned Sweetbreads. Though there are a few misnomers at Arvida, all the same. What, for example, would you expect to be given in that inn's Demerara Room? Well, you don't

AWAY, AWAY, FOR I WOULD FLY TO THEE

AS EVERYONE knows by now, when you're in a hurry travel by train, not by air. In winter, anyhow, I know a man who took six days to fly from Montreal to Vancouver. I know another who only last month took train and steamer from Paris to London because he was in a great rush. The rest of his party flew, in a more leisurely style, and by the time he reached London some were still in Paris, some had been landed Scotland at a greater distance from London than Paris is, and one small group did make London Airport but then lost in fog while on the ground of the airport, so heip me, and were stuck there for two solid hours till a search-party found them.

ALL THE same, you can still make speed by air, with luck. I have just been reading about a Vancouver party which got back to Vancouver again in three weeks after "seeing" New York, Newfoundland, the Azores, Portugal, Spain, Italy, France, Switzerland, and England. Yes, and they had "a day or two in each of the major centres." Well, that would be a lot more fun than not doing it at all, naturally. But of Europe used to take several years, when done properly . . . when you think how little you can see of France in three weeks or from the air . . . when you think of how short three weeks ould be, even for just sitting still in the Azores . . . when you realize that you can only see a country by walking through it, and know a country by living in it . . . well, by gosh, it does you no good to cry, but sometimes you can't help it. Miracles of air-travel be blowed. The only miracle is to find so many parts of the earth still unruffled.

Hir Preps' Diary Being A Chronicle Of Our Times MONDAY 18th I rose early this morning, and took me off to the dentist's, much pleased with calm of the streets; and he did but meagre stinging, con tenting himself with cleansing my jaw with a pleasant pastie of flowre. At my club, much taradiddle about affairs across the harbor, with gossip that sev eral parties are riven and straining for surcease. By and by it grew hot, and I took off my velvet vest to write a letter abroad, boasting intemperately about this weather. Anon home where my wife was tingled with the arrival carriage of a new suiting, of golden cord fabric, demm'd handsome; and she donned neckerchiefs and cravates of complementary hues: of crimson, magenta, green, white, cobalt, navy, russet, and etc. I, with one eye on this frou-frou and the other on the N.Y. Times, nodded approval betimes, and disapproval too; but in the end, quit my reading and concentrated on the suiting. Such is the husband's grisly lot.

TUESDAY, 19th — This day I had nought to do but work, so I worked, and with much pleasure. But I do note by various journals that artisans of divers crafts and guilds do press for a 30-hour week, which is splendid; anon they will trim it to 24 hours, so that all the week's work will be performed in one day. And then the Ten Command ments will be revised to read: "Six days

I took a beaker of coffee with Master Harvey Harris of California, who narrated a most bizarre tale; certain drillers having designs on his property, and that of his friends, they banded together, and made vigorous protests to the government, but to no avail. Whereupon these engineers made slanting cuts into the earth, and found oil many leagues beneath Master Harvey's house, and now make forfeit to him of $140 a onth, with which he is mighty merry. Harvey and Pearl-man. Thence to the hotel, where I sat me down with Master Fred McGregor, Master Courtney Haddock and Master Jan Roelofsen, and listened to an ad-dress by Master Lait, most sensible of brains and tongue. And there were many flattering things said about Master George Warren and Master Len Wood which blushed them to the pores Anon I chatted with Mistress Alice Mallek, she wearing a bonnet of flowers, demm'd jaunty. By and by to my place of business for laborious discourse. In the evening by carriage with my wife to the theatre, to witness "Ivory Hunter," a most spirited chiaroscuro of wild game in Tanganyika. I inquired for my friend Master Elliot Brown but learned he was abroad receiving honors for his work in this theatre, which pleases me mightily. Thus home through a chill, starlit night, and with great difficulty persuaded my dog to go to bed.

THURSDAY, 22nd—Up betimes and down to breakfast, where I found perched on my casement a sweet-faced child by name Kirsty, who wandered in to greet the day and stayed to cat my scrambled eggs. Anon to my place of business where I examined a great of business where I examined a many lithographs of the late k funeral, sombre and impressive, the teares of London's people testifying to their love for this great monarch. Comes to me news that Dean George Calvert has been made a bishop, a most seemly honor, but sad for his parishioners. To my club for lunch, where Master Ernest Cleveland proferr'd a cheroot, in tribute to his newborn daughter, Mistress Heather. By and by to my taylor's, in pursuit of some trews of flannel; but Master Herbert Doherty, the rascal, layings-out than my poor purse could honorably withstand. Thus to affairs, which go briskly; and by carriage home, where I ate a piece of meat and fixed my dog with a new license, so that he will not be impounded. In my library, I pick't up a play by Will Shakespear, "The Tempest," which I know not, but of which many fine things are spoken, and resolved to put an end to it. Thus greatly bemused by the manner in which Mistress Ariel puts persons asleep, I soon made shift to slumber.

FRIDAY, 23rd-This morning my wife, poor wretch, tells me of violent rumblings and rattlings o' the casements, which made her to cry out; and methinks this was a convulsion of the earth, but I slept it through. To the city by carriage, and I drove many blocks in quest of a parking-space, but could not find one, which vexed me to the pores. And do believe that the day of the horse is done, there being insufficient hitchingposts for the traffick; and that citizens will shortly resume their affairs on foot.
My lunch was a chine of lamb and raisin pye. Anon to the barber's for a trimng, and Master Harry and Master Jack joyned themselves in a lively dispute about military dentists, Master Harry having refused their services in the old warre, he bracing himself with a flagon of whisky and having his teeth pulled by a friendly barber. So, much cheered by the repartee of these fellows, and an anecdote from Master Rebel Mowat, home to change into my lace jabot and velvet breeches, to attend on a balle, Now here was a great press of persons, too many for the danse; and under the pink light of a kaleidoscope, looking like embaimed mannequins. So I lit a cheroot, and discoursed of books with Mistress Norman Cook; of politicks with Master Lou and Mistress Heath Muirhead; and of musique with Master Hans Gruber, he in a vile choler that his Symphony hath been omitted from a new pamphlet of this city, purporting to list

Opinions Of Our Correspondents

WORD IS BOND

A spiritual bond can never entail a material contract. They are not on the same plane of value. Thus on oath (a spiritual bond) can never be the basis for a human law. All laws based on oaths are thus ultra vires.

Our Lord expressed it thus: Render to Caesar (Rex) what is Caesar's, but unto God that which is God's. Thus we should substitute a material bond for the oath, such as "Relinquishing to the Crown all possessions if the truth is not told and acted upon."

This would eliminate a lot of red tape and simplify legislation.

CARPENTERS' WAGES

In 1939 the basic wage for carpenters was 75c per hour. Calculated on the present cost of living index, the carpenter's wage should now be about $1.50 per hour. On that basis carpenters are not underpaid, indeed one must conclude they are getting more than they are

I challenge any recognized leader of the carpenters' union to give any valid reason why 75c per hour increase should now be awarded. The proposed wage-scale would then show an increase from 1939 of 233 a per cent against a 100 per cent rise in living costs. As it is the public that always pays the piper (carpenter), the public is vitally interested in this matter.

Here is a little sum in arithmetic for Mr. Midgley to show him that labor costs do play a very definite part in slowing down house construction:

In 1939, had I employed four carpenters for $12\frac{1}{2}$ days I should have paid them \$300; but were I to employ four carpenters for 12½ days under the proposed 1952 scale, I should have to fork out \$1,000. That is highway robbery, 1952 version!

The old Conservative way of reform is by knowledge and the given chance to vote in the democratic way. No proposition presented to the voters—no chance for a government to perform the wishes of the voters.

No one can hand Social Credit on a platter to Canadians or anyone else and they maintain a democratic hold upon their government. Much as one reveres the original promoters of a God inspired way to right the wrongs we suffer under, one must deplore their present at-titude. Granted much prayer is needed to reach the hearts and minds of mankind—let our prayers also be answered in democratic action.

The voters must know what the Social Credit proposition is—we feel it to be a way of life and a personal challenge to each. As with the acceptance of Christ's promises one must individually ask for to receive. Thus the churches. Individuals always but massed

Placing 'First Things' First'

I was very much interested in you editorial of Feb. 18, "First Things First. The condition as portrayed at Toronto and McGill is undoubtedly the same throughout Canada. We constantly hear complaints from business men as to the quality of their help, which is the product of the present system of education They state that they cannot spell and have not the most elementary idea of grammar and composition so necessary their work. In the opinion of the writer one of the main reasons for the condition complained of is the system of Objective Tests which now dominate our educational curriculum. This system works in this way. In a literature test: "Who wrote Othello? Dickens, Shakespeare, Burns. Underline the correct one.

applies to almost every examination except in cases where translation from foreign languages applies. This system calls for very little effort on the part of the examiner or examinee.

The Objective Test system has come to us from the United States and its origin there may be explained by the fact that teachers found themselves faced by the problem of a large number of pupils from homes where the English language was not spoken. Instead of facing the issue by a systematic training in English they compromised by introducing the Objective System, by which a pupil with only a rudimentary knowledge of Eng-lish could secure passing grades.

The Objective System has little to recommend it. It puts a premium on memory to the sacrifice of logical reasoning and the True and False test falls to the level of a guessing game.

The writer has a memory of McGill examinations of another day, in which the heading of the paper stated that credit should be given by the examiner for the composition and spelling of the

The teachers of the rising generations The teachers of the rising generations will be faced with the problem that faced their compeers to the south of us during the last century. Will they take the easy way out or will they accept the challenge of keeping up the standard of the language entrusted to them?

In the face of the more spectacular phases of the educational curriculum they must realize that our growing citizens will be best equipped to take their share in the development of Canada, if they are trained to read and under stand the problems arising out of the history past and present of their great

So it was for the first time that Mr Abbott told the public where the cash has gone. And, instead of Mr. Mac-"hundreds of millions lying around" the cash position of the government at the end of the year was actually rather tight. $83 millions, which was all the cash "lying around," is not very much for the government to come and go on for the last three months of the

As This Year's Federal Surplus Dwindles

To prepare the broadcast the Finance Minister took time out from the arduous business of preparing next year's esti-mates. Usually this is done in January. This year it's later because of the later opening of Parliament, and because Mr Abbott himself was away for most of January. He was representing Canada both in the financial discussions with N.A.T.O.'s "Three Wise Men" and at the eeting of Commonwealth Finance Ministers. The total of next year's estimated expenditure will not be known till it is presented to Parliament. But we have been told that defense alone will cost over $2 billions. This is, indeed, the estimate which Mr. Abbott gave to N.A.T.O. as long ago as December. This is the total which he has refused to increase. But within the total the government is arranging to add about $100 millions to the $228 millions which it had originally proposed for mutual aid. On top of these $2 billions, it is almost inconceivable that the civil estimates can be less than another $2 billions.

Last year Mr. Abbott was resolutely determined to keep civil expenditures below $2 billions. He succeeded, but not by much: the main civil estimates came to $1,987 millions. Since then, there has been added the new expense of the uni-versal old-age pension; higher payments have been opened to the provinces; civil service salaries have been increased; so has the cost of everything the government buys-from the soap and towels used by the cleaning women to the cost of construction.

Examination and approval of the estimates rests with the Treasury Box a committee of the Cabinet which Mr. Abbott chairs, and which is meeting three full days a week at present. When its labors are over the main estimates are printed and presented to Parlia-ment. Then Mr. Abbott, with the assistance only of Dr. James McCann, the Minister of National Revenue, has to decide how to raise the required revenue.

From the level of expenditures which now seems inevitable, the tax cuts that people have been talking about to look extremely problematical. If Mr. Abbott has to raise more revenue than he needed this year, he is not going to be able to do much cutting. What does seem to be indicated, however, is a new schedule of taxes. If he raises more revenue, he may still do it in different ways. And this is the possibility which will keep us all guessing till budget time.

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

Two events which appear at first glance to have little relation to each other marked an important milestone for a large and growing city congregation this month.

The first was the opening of the Baptist Community Church at Langford; the second was a packed prayer meeting room in the new $22,000 addition at Central Baptist Langford church combined the extension work that

Central Baptist has been doing in Langford and Luxton, a work that is just the latest development in phenomenal missionary growth in the home field. Since the day in 1927 when Central Church was established here in a tent, the work has grown until now there are five congregations, four in their own church buildings with full-time pastors. In the meantime the sponsoring church has burgeoned to the point where the big new addi-

From the efforts of Dr. J. B. Rowell, and the handful of people who gathered with him in a tent that first Sunday 25 years ago, has come a spiritual fellowship encompassing hundreds of folk in church, young peoples, and mission work. A church—which started without a member,

Whittaker a building, or any equipment, might well be proud of the present roll of members and adherents, the $60,000 property which it has acquired, and the fact that it is fully equipped to serve-a big field; but Central Baptist can boast much more.

Extension Work Is Permanent

The extension work at Brentwood Bay, Duncan, Sidney and Langford is now so permanent in character that a regular Baptist Pastors Tellowship is in process of being organized.

Eligible for membership, in addition to Dr. Rowell, are Rev. R. H. Standerwick and Rev. Andrew P. Anderson both retired, Rev. H. B. Bye, Rev. W. O. McKee and Rev. John Stewart. At Duncan, where the Rev. McKee is pastor, services were started in a rented hall by a layman, J. W. Georgeson, who has since been accepted into the ministry. Duncan now has its own church building.

At Sidney, where Rev. Bye is stationed, the hall originally used for services was later donated to the church by members Mr. and Mrs. J. Mason. The Sidney congregation is currently building an addition to charge of Rev. Vincent Burnett.

This recital of the achievement of one church may be commonplace to those who know the history of this and other congregations which have set themselves to reach great goals, but it surely must come as a revelation to many who think of the church as decadent or retrogressive.

The story of national and international church growth can be read in the statistics which reach into the millions, but perhaps it can be better comprehended in the comparatively small but close-to-home example of Central Baptist.

Slowly and puietly, but with inexorable force and effectiveness the church of God is going forward day by day.

IT'S MY VIEW

Tonight at the Bay Street Armories, the Times, through the co-operation of the Vancouver Island Boxing Association, will assist in the 1952 Island Golden Gloves.

In co-sponsoring this event, it is our aim to help promote the sport from the aspect of healthful physical training only and not to the eventual glorification of material that will be used to fill the card of the avaricious professional promoter.

One of the most regrettable aspects of boxing is that yoo often easier and illudyised youngeless either the professional field with eager and ill-advised youngsters enter the professional field with-out the physical make-up or ability to weather the toughest of all sports. And as a result they fall prey to the vicious promoter whose sole aim is to work for the promoter and his personal gain.

It matters not to him if a fighter is injured; there is always another to take his place. Professional boxing is in a sorry state. Deaths are becoming far too frequent and a full investigation of the sport is needed before it degenerates into the bull pit.

However, the prime aim of the British Colum-Walker bla Amateur Boxing Association and its subsidiary organizations among them, the V.I.A.B.A., is the promotion as an athletic ideal for the youngster.

Referees are instructed to guard against injury to a fighter at all costs. So, if tonight, perhaps your thirst for blood gets the better of your natural instincts, think a while before booing if the referee stops a fight. In your opinion the loser may be able to carry on, but in the referee's opinion, further participation may result in possible serious injury.

Boxing has been called by many names in its history. It started out as "the manly art of self defense." To day its professional byword is "the red light district of sports." Amateur boxing as staged on the island comes under the former category, the difference between professional and amateur boxing being as clearly distinguishable as night from day,

The boys are taught the fundamentals of self defense, to parry and attack. They are warned of the greed and parsimony of pro-fessional promoters and advised of the dangers of entering the monied ranks where they would soon become mere pawns in un-

In our opinion those wishing to turn professional should be forced to undergo severe physical and mental tests before being granted licenses, these tests to be carried out at specific periods

Few approximately 20 per cent of all amateur boxers ever join professional ranks and of these the road to fame is clearly defined for only the exceptional. The others either become slobs on the market of wrecked human lives or get out before they are punched into insensibility.

But to the youngsters who will be in action tonight, this is a sport—a game out of which they should emerge with their minds more mentally alerted, their bodies structurally sounder and their

The Vancouver Island Boxing Association is a non-profit body. All proceeds from the show go back into club coffers for equipment, the cost of which runs high.

Tournament winners will be eligible to go on to further glories In the B.C. Golden Gloves and from there to a possible Olympic berth as a member of Canada's team.

If in any way the Times has been able to provide some young-ster an opportunity to compete in athletics which otherwise may not have been his, and by this participation increase his stature in the community, becoming a better citizen as a result, then the

GAME BODY RECOMMENDS

Because of reports of the scarcity of deer on the island this year, Victoria's hunting club has recommended the 1952 buck deer shooting season be slashed to 26 days.

After hearing from Inspector George Stevenson of the game department that the deer population on the lower island is poor due to heavy hunting, severe winters, predators and poor feeding grounds, the Victoria Fish and Game Protec-tive Association this week decided to call for a shooting season

The association also favors dropping the bag limit from to one buck for the season. Delegates of the club will take this recommendation to the island affiliated body meeting Sunday at Nanaimo.

MIAMI, Fla., Ecb. 23 (AP)—The Philadelphia Municipal Stadium, it appeared today, will be the site of the return match between Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight championship Promoter Herman Taylor of Philadelphia said Friday night tentative arrangements have been worked out for the title fight in the stadium about June 18.

Taylor said he made a "very flattering offer" in a conference with Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, and "we didn't fix up all the details but part of the obstacles were ironed out." Another meeting scheduled Monday.

Taylor said the fight would be televised nationally, except for a blackout in Philadelphia

VICTORIA IN GRID LOOP?

TORONTO, Feb. 23 (CP)-Ted Reeve, Telegram sports columnist, said Friday in a story datelined Vancouver that football executives in the west coast city are con-sidering a plan for a springtime Big Four league composed of Vancouver, Victoria, Edmonton and Calgary.

Reeve says a plan outlined to him calls for Calgary and Edmonton to use their 1951 line-ups or the ones being built for this season with Vancouver and Victoria importing seven or eight United States players and Canadians from other clubs in the west tern interprovincial football union and the eastern Big Four League.

MARKET'S WEEK

Selling Takes Toll In Sharpest Break

By BURKE CAHILL, Times Business Editor This week the month-long trend of weakening support and slowly mounting selling pressure took its toll in the sharpest stock market break in several months.

On Canadian exchanges Toronto was hardest hit. There the stock market's industrial index fell eight points from Monday morning to Tuesday night.

By HARRY GRAYSON

Probably the last thing in the world you'd expect a 75-year-old man to do is climb up on a horse's back, and galloy him around a race

But that doesn't apply to William Caywood, That's the first thing he does after reporting to his boss at the Haleah race course most mornings. He sets them down for a fast workout, too.

As a Jockey, Caywood was a contemporary of the one and only Tod Stoan, Damy Maher, Winnie O'Connot, George Odom and Fred Taral. He remembers Max Hirsch, the famous King Ranch trainer, when he was a rider of 60-odd pounds. For three years he was contract rider for Czar Nicholas. He also was 'under contract to Sam Hildreth, one of the top all-time trainers.

USES LONG STIRRUPS

Caywood's appearance in the saddle has occasioned chuckles and snickers from young exercise boys because of his long stirrups and dispersive of his long stirrups and dispersive popularized by Eddie Arcaro. "It gives you a better grip, makes for better halance. Some of the boys carry the short stirrup style too far."

Caywood started riding races for a living in 1895 after riding match events at county fairs in his native flowa. At the time he became a full-fledged jockey he weighed 60 pounds, and the additional 50 he has put on through the years wouldn't disqualify him as a rider today. He's naturally small, and is spryet than most men 25 years his junior.

Hollywood—in the midst of a campaign to convince the U.S. that movie stars are just like your next door neighbors and folksy as apple pie—gasped and blushed.

But next day, when they saw Shelley's photograph in the news-papers, moviegoers all over America nudged each other and

The result (it took a great deal of effort on the part of several men to organize the author's writings) is an absorbing account of an unknown land and an unknown people.

Diplomacy was required by the white man in his dealings with the natives. Working one day on his sheep ranch, Bridges handed it sheep ranch, Bridges handed it scrutinizing it. Bridges handed it back saying that the scribbling meant nothing. When the native returned to the encampment he was approached by another who asked for tobacco, needes and thread-three articles which the messenger had not mentioned to Bridges. The messenger stated that Bridges was handed the letter but could not read it. Talking the matter over with the disgrunded native later, Bridges found that he would take a sheet of paper, think earnestly of the things he wanted to say, and scribble away, believing that his thoughts were thus transcribed on the paper and that an intelligent eye and brain would translate them into words.

Never again could the native believe that he was able to put his thoughts down on paper!

It is a thrilling story. The brave little ships fought gamely against aircraft, and the seas, and sometimes lost the battle. Howarth tells many a story of sacrifice and tragedy, and some of a humorous nature.

Acid for the ships' batteries was sent up from London in gallon jars. One night a weary sergeant made his round delivering two to each fishing ship. The next morning, when identical jars were discovered, it was revealed that rum had been sent in identical jars, so another tour had to be made to deliver the acid and bring back the rum. Some of the spirit was never recovered. A few of the fishermen had filled their to better use. Most annoyed were those, says David Howarth, who had not yet opened the jars.

The girl with perfect hair is very rare. Most of us need a touch of camoudiage here and a little illusion there. If you've about decided your hair is hopeless, Miss Laura Meredith, a trouble-shooter for problem hair at Robert Flance Hair Design Institute in New York, offers you constructive advice.

First and ofremost, understand that, no matter what type of hair you may have, expert styling can make it look loveller.

If your hair is thin, your difficulty may be in concealing sparse spots. You probably think it never grows, but actually it does—perhaps at a little less than one-half inch a month.

NEEDS STIMULATION

Thin, fine, wispy hair is also the victim of a lack of stimulation. Because its light weight provides no pulling stimulation to the muscles of the tone, necessary to the health and vigor of the hair.

To overcome this, and as an aid in helping hair to grow, Miss Meredith recommends gentle hair pulling exercises for five minutes a day.

The popular new "poodle" cut seems to have been made for the thin-haired. The mass of flutfycuthies, and also is very attractive.

UNRULY COWLICKS

By GAILE DUGAS

This year, woo enters the resort seene with a distinct advantage: it can move directly into spring. For what was good in a lightweight wool under palm trees and blue sides is equally good on a fine spring day.

Wool for resort wear is light and porous. Thus, a light wool suit or dress that saw wear in the South can become a spring standby under a lightweight wool coat. It can, in fact, be the nucleus of a wardrobe.

We have picked, from the collections of California designers, a suit and a dress that might be starting points in such a wardrobe.

Both are so simple as to be nearly One of the commonest and most troublesome hair problems is the unruly cowliefs. A cowliefs is a mistreaded growth pattern of hair, explains Miss Merceldin.

Hair that bulges on either side of a part is also the result of a coiffure design that tries to flight nature. What you must do is develop your style to suit the cowliefs. Don't argue with it, because you can't win.

By curving your part to your hair's natural inclinations the cowliek tuff will fearn to behave. Curving a part not only proves flattering to most women, but it also enables you to start the part at the point in the halfiline where it will prove most interesting.

Naturally, regardless of what a tight permanent will last longer. Style you have in mind, very straight "A permanent will last until it is hair must first have a soft perma cut off." says. Laura Meredith, nent. One fallacy is in thinking that "whether it is tight or soft." The Making the most of your hair, whether it is thick or thin, is all a matter of styling. If your-problem is thin, fine hair, like the girl yictured in the upper left hand corner, the new poodle cut (lower left) is ideal for you, too. It will give your hair the illusion of thickness, and actually make it easier to handle. The hair with the unruly cowlick (left centre) can be neatly kept in place by the means of a back curved part (right centre). Hair that is too thick (upper right) usually presents many styling problems because it is so apt to fall in a limp, bulky mass. Such hair responds beautifully to a "shapering" (lower right, which consists of skillfully shaping the hair in layers tapered to lengths that skillfully shaping the hair in layers tapered to lengths that "iff" the head. You will achleve the most attractive hair-do for thick hair if you avoid fluff, and seek sleekness, instead. Yariatohs of any of these styles would depend upon your face and figure. If your hair is naturally curly, you have one less problem to worry about. Staight hair, however, must have a soft permanent as a foundation for styling.

Gavin Weir had a hand in this improvement too; efforts of the Dominion Government to improve dairy herd quality won his wholehearted support. For years he kept a government-owned registered Jersey buil, "Mays Major" at his farm to service district herds.

These forgeries are not too easy to detect. Some tests were given in the B.N.A.P.S. Magazine a while back which are worth noting. First take a stamp known to be genuine (some of the cheap varieties are easy to come by) and place the suspect on top of it in front of a strong light so that the holes exactly coincide. If any difference appears you probably have a wrong un!

CHECK DIAMETER OF HOLES

Then check the diameter of the holes. A micrometer is not necessary, as the writer-found that an accurate test can be made with a needle, provided that its diameter is a little larger than the holes. Drop the needle into one of the perforations of the good stamp until it is checked by its thickness from going any further, and measure the length of the part that projects through. Then do the same with the suspected item. If the length is not the same the diameters of the holes are of course of different size, so your specimen is obviously a falsie.

Like all good tricks, it requires some advance preparation and practice, but when mastered it is simple to perform. Arrange letters of the alphabet upon a large display board, as illustrated above, or upon sheets of paper which will be distributed to the guests. Be sure that you duplicate the letters and arrange them exactly as in the illustration. In the performance, the "mindreader" announces he will tell the name of any person any guest has in maind. To do this, he merely asks in which of the five vertical olumns each letter of the name appears. He

I have just dug my way out of a pile of questions and have come across 19 letters that asked the same question about picking up a frozen pile. Each letter gave a different example, but they all boiled down to the same situation. Suppose the discard pile is frozen before either side meds. For example, the dealer may turn up a red three or a wild card as the first up-card. The player at your right discards a seven. Can you, needing 90 points, put down Joker-K.K.K and a pair of sevens? Would it be equally legal (or illegal) to put evens?

Sevens:

The answer is that either meld is perfectly legal and entitles you to the discard pole. You are allowed to take a frozen pile with a natural pair that matches the previously adseard. If your side has not previously melded, your meld must add to the right total—but that does not have to be in addition to your natural pair.

To put it another way, we rule for taking the discard pile is. an initial meld is exactly the same whether the pile is frozen or unfrozen. The only difference arises when you make your initial meld from your hand and then want to take the discard pile later on.

For example, suppose you need 90 points and meld Joker-A-A from your hand. If the discard pile is not frozen, at your next turn to ple with one matching card and one wild card. However, if the discard pile with one matching card and one wild card. Shoplifting Sucker's Game; But Men, Women Keep Trying To Beat Odds, Get Something For Nothing

This is the third and last of a series by Reporter Ron Baird costly shoplifting racket that costs stores thousand and ends, always, in the discovery of the persistent thief. Reporter Baird tells of some fool's errands,

By RON BAIRD

For every shoplifter who tries to ply the trade of "getting mething for nothing," there are alert sales clerks keeping a wary eye out for the dishonest.

They act as "deputies" for the store's detectives in helping to cut down on the thousands of dollars worth of merchandise that is stolen here annually. Shoplifting is no cinch-for the rank amateur, it's a tough Amateurs give themselves away by fidgeting, getting red in the face through embarrassment and hesitating before stuffing stolen goods into shopping bags or deep-coat pockets. Professionals use cleverer dodges-like shoe boxes with false bottoms and, in the case of women, going into the rest room to put on their shoplifted clothing under the clothes they were into the store.

The rest room gag is combatted by the use of quick vitted and sharp-eared women attendants. But a store's defense in waging war against the professional is the fact that store detectives get to know them by sight. Sometimes, when they spot the detective first, they beat a hasty exit out of the store, smiles on their faces for having avoided a pinch but, fortunately for the store, with empty pockets.

Few stores can laugh when they know that shoplifting is one of the biggest merchandising headaches in the book, but store detectives sometimes get a laugh out of the regulars who never stop trying.

One local store investigator still chuckles when he remembers the case of the merchant sailor he nailed with $20 worth of shoplifted meat after the sait's beer-drinking pals suggested to him that it would be a good gag to get a T-bone for nothing.

This slightly-sozzled gent was picked up after he lifted the meat, then decided—perhaps in a fit of remorse—to put someone else's signature to a charge account bill so that he would, at least on the surface, appear a wee bit honest.

But the gimmick didn't work and, he protested in a shocked least of the surface is a stocked as sold." It voice: "Til sue, why that signature is as good as gold." It wasn't worth its weight in tinfoil.

to pay for the meat after they spotted him lifting it." The story the sailor related would have softened the hardest of hearts—except that of a store detective.

He told how the friends who had suggested the shoplifting spree had "swiped his watch, cuff-links and tle-pin the nigh before while he was sleeping off a hard session with the suds. It didn't take much of a Sherlock Holmes to discover that the sailor was wearing a lumberjack's shirt and would have little use for cuff-links, much less a tie-pin. "I might have known a 'dick' would have spotted that-I guess that's why my friends call me the lyingest guy in town,

But is wasn't being caught red-handed with the boodle

"Why, I'll be the laughing stock of Victoria." he said. "What will my friends think of me now-being pinched by a store detective!"

With the exception of two, all other men that one detective has caught had been drinking. With the women, a great-number shoplift "just for the thrill of it" and some make the "thrill" pay off,

Women are considered the worst offenders, perhaps because they do the bulk of the shopping. Sweaters, skirts, sheets, lingerie and all manner of goods disappear into shopping bags and other carry-alls.

Young Victorian In London For Late King's Funeral; Moving Experience

truly the heart of the Empire. Long after the funeral proces sion had passed, the music the Coldstreams played as the train pulled out of Paddington, the same which the Irish played passing us—the Dead March from Saul—rang through one's head, mingled with the pounding of feet in the gravelled streets of London and the Edgeware Road.

Spectacular color and pagean try raising excitement removed from mourning; and yet one never forgot why all this was so impressive—for it was the feeling which gave a depth to the cere-mony, and it is that which lingers mony, and it is that which lingers after the windows are closed and the coffee doled out.

Even in the queue there were jokes and chuckles—who could be mournful for five cold hours but only occasionally were the chuckles unseemly; people chatted on ordinary things, and oked of those who were worming ahead in the line.

But there was no malice, no pushing; and around, someone or other was discussing the Royal family. Although the paper or radio were full of fine sounding words for those who wanted to pay homage, I don't think they verdid it, just that in expres ing it—the words were grander than they would have been had the people themselves uttered

February 24 to March 1 inclusive

Being held to bring about a better public understanding of the work of this Canada-wide nursing service and what it offers citizens in all walks of life; services of which, the order feel, many Canadians are not fully aware. The week is intended to be purely informative and is not a money-raising project.

> Annual meeting of the board of management of Victoria Branch, Victorian Order of Nurses, will be held next Wednesday after-noon at the Spencer Foundation, 1951 Cook Street, commencing

One of Miss Dunne's first visits is with Miss Ada Crossley, who get a liver injection for pernicious anaemia and treatment for arthritic joints. Miss Crossley gets up for a few hours each day, and she is interested in people and current events. She has been on the V.O.N. list for three years.

The Victorian Order nurse has a choice of where she wants to live and work. There her first duty is, of course, to visit the sick in their homes and give the treatment prescribed by the doctor, adding to ____ it her own personal touch which means so much to the patient and often to the rest of the family of the sufferer.

Each morning she gets her list of assignments. As well as taking care of her patients the nurse may be called on, and should be able to give instruction in the preventing and curative aspects of nursing. The V.O.N. program includes the various public health activities such as child health centres, school nursing, prenatal classes and girls' health classes. There has also been recently considerable development in industrial nursing and opportunity for special training in this work is being provided.

so far as to reprove the occu-pants of Rideau Hall for going beyond their province. Others solemnly warned that the idea of visiting nurses was all hair-brained nonsense and that Lady

Some mistakes were inevitably made in the course of the years For a time it was thought that a string of cottage hospitals should be erected across the country But that took too much money and finally Miss Macleod and her successors in the position of chief superintendent concentrated or creating a corps of fully trained nurses, who should also be exceptional women, to nurse patients in their homes.

100 BRANCHES

From that small beginning in Ottawa 54 years ago, the Victorian Order has grown into a na tion-wide organization with 100 branches scattered throughout the ten provinces. Each branch controls and directs its own affairs, but in order to keep nursing service at a constant uniform excellence the nurses and super intendents are appointed by the National Office in Ottawa.

Visit of the V.O.N. nurse is eagerly awaited by Mrs. Mabel Hornsby, who has been confined to bed for months following a stroke. She has a hospital bed put up in the living room of the home where she and her sister live and she eagerly awaits Miss Dunne's weekly visit. Then she is bathed and rubbed and "all prettied up." She tells you "the days are long between visits of the V.O.N. nurse."

There are children on Nurse Dunne's list of calls. Here she takes young Susan's pulse before she gives her the penicillin the doctor has ordered for her bad throat. Brother Douglas is an interested onlooker. He, too, has been under V.O.N. care at various times in his short life.

Nurse Dunne's next call is on a young mother, Mrs. J. Matheson, to give her a few instructions on how to bath her new baby. Mrs. Matheson is not long out from Scotland and she is very pleased to find "district nurses" to help her, "something like we have at home.'

Joseph Goulding has been a patient of the V.O.N. for more than six years. He is diabetic and must have insulin every morning. He is on Miss Dunne's regular list of calls but sometimes she has difficulty locating him. His friends invite him to "come and stay for a week-end" and he forgets to leave a forwarding address. Then Nurse Dunne has to look for him—and to find him—for he must have the insulin each day.

"But please try and get it this time, I've got to get to town. Now as I was saying."

And so it went.

There were several more interruptions, as you can well imagine, until finally Gertrude couldn't stand it any longer and she called it quits—right in the middle of the recipe.

Can you imagine anything worse?

With TOMMIE WALTERS

Within the next few days Los Angeles televiewers will see the first demonstration of a threedimensional picture which does not require the use of spectacles. Our Hollywood scout reports "You see it but don't quite believe it." The device is the invention of veteran screen writer Gene Towne who has been working on it for the past three years. It is suitable for movies and out-door advertising as well, but intil perfected requires an ex-ceptionally clear, powerful signal. Towne predicts the billboard poster will undergo a complete revolu-tion. His device not only produces depth but gives the effect of motion, such as wheels turning or girls waving. The first such posters are already in test operation in the L.A. region, so if you happen to be vacationing down that way and the lucious babe in a swim suit suddenly appears to wink at you from the billboard as you drive past, there's no cause for alarm. The liquid refreshment aren't any more potent.

The word from other sources in Flickerville has it that television may come in for a drastic shock at the end of the current season when at least six top actors "take a walk out" on roles on big net-work shows. The people concerned obviously can-one typical thespian puts it this way in stating the case of all against TV's typing: "In the movies an actor is typed as a gangster if he plays two such roles a year. The impact of characterization is far greater in TV, where an actor finds himself playing the same role for weeks on end with no time to do other dramatic work." So, rather than be committed for the rest of their careers to a type—or what's worse—a single role, at least six plan to give notice to top shows and try their luck freelancing in a variety of roles. As a result, other radio stars who have been dickering on contracts to switch to TV, including Phil Harris, are pulling up short and are reported in favor of guest appearances for at least a year to "feel out" the medium.

Quick to note the trend, the TV industry now views its future as being in films. The mushrooming growth in numbers of TV film producers is evidence enough. Rumor has it that yet another of the big independent film studios will shut down entirely as far as theatre production is concerned and will concentrate on TV films, both leasing sound stages and turning out its own products. The time differential between the east and west coasts provides sufficient reason for an absolute limit on the number of high budget shows which can be done "live" each day. Actually the span for these is only three hours long—5 to 8 p.m. for west coast audiences and 8 to 11 p.m. in the east. Since many In that bracket are 60 or 90-minute revues, a week's "live" potential is only about 18 to 20 telecasts for the video relay. The rest of the day's schedule, for the most part, will have to be "live" local programs or films. And there are now more than 35 Hollywood production centres, operating at full capacity, turning out tele-pictures with better than "live"
